VNS Health, received an award of $4 million from the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services to support mental health and substance use services for youth, families and residents living in the South Bronx. The award is part of the Biden administration's recently announced funding plan of 128 grants to health clinics in 40 states and Puerto Rico, aimed at expanding certified community behavioral health clinics in high-need areas across the country. With the additional funding, the community health nonprofit plans to expand its current behavioral health portfolio, which addresses critical needs of underserved communities in the Bronx: from screening, assessment, treatment, care coordination, and recovery support from mental illness and/or substance use disorders, regardless of a patient's ability to pay.
