

Good Morning Brooklyn:

NEW CENTER WILL SERVE SUNSET PARK'S SENIOR ASIAN COMMUNITY

VNS Health CEO and President Dan Savitt and VNS Health Executive Vice President and Chief Strategy Officer David Rosales participate in a traditional "lion dance" ceremony to mark the opening of the VNS Health Community Center in Sunset Park.

Brooklyn Daily Eagle, December 06, 2022

Notable leaders from the Brooklyn and Chinese American communities joined with VNS Health on Monday to celebrate the opening of the home health care nonprofit's new Community Center in Sunset Park. The new center, which is one of three vibrant VNS Health Community hubs serving the Asian-American community in Brooklyn, Manhattan and Queens, aims to "tackle inequalities" in Brooklyn's Asian-American neighborhoods, and will be a place where seniors in Brooklyn can access culturally competent care, education, and connect with local health and social support resources.

Another new center opens in Flushing next Monday, Dec 12.

The Brooklyn Daily Eagle is a free, weekly newspaper featuring local events and news for residents in Brooklyn, NY. They aim to serve the borough's 2.6 million residents with daily news, in-depth reporting on the people, powers, and ideas shaping the community. The outlet reaches an audience of 204,354 through articles and social media.